THE VICE-REGAL PARTY

At New Westminster on Wednesday—Presentation of an Address and Reply Thereto.

The Vice-Regal party arrived at New Westminster by the Dominion steamer Douglas shortly after noon Wednesday. A procession was formed and the party proceeded to the show grounds, where an address was presented by the corporation. A military escort was formed from the artillery and rifles. His Excellency was the guest of the Right Rev. Bishop of New Westminster. An "At Home" was given in the evening by Mrs. Silleton, which was largely attended by the people of the royal city. His Excellency took his departure for the east at an early hour this morning.

The following is the Governor's reply to the address:

In response to the civic address His Excellency said: I thank you for the welcome which, as Her Majesty's representative, I have had the honor of receiving at your hands, and I can assure you that it gives me much pleasure to visit the mainland capital of this province. I entirely concur with the views which you have expressed as to the immense importance, political and commercial, of the great national line of railway now upon the point of completion, which will, save for a few miles, convey us back to the capital. This province, whose misfortune it was at one time to encounter a series of disappointments owing to the hardy enterprise and progress of the work will now, I hope, be amply recouped by the construction of the road five years before the date originally contemplated. It will, I trust, contribute abundantly to the material prosperity of your city and its neighborhood. There is probably no section of the province more interested in the work than this, for you have, I understand, in this immediate neighborhood one of the largest tracts of fertile country on this part of the Pacific seaboard. The rich soil of the valley of the Fraser, its magnificent climate and delightful scenery will, I believe, attract to it, now that it has been rendered so easily accessible from the east, a large number of settlers of the best class. Your local industries are, without exception, likely to derive the greatest advantage from the altered condition under which they will be carried on. As this is the last occasion upon which, for the present at all events, I am likely to meet a considerable number of the Queen's subjects in this part of the Dominion, I must take this opportunity of telling you, and I should be glad if my words should reach others besides those to whom they are addressed, how greatly I have enjoyed my visit to this province. I question whether in any other part of the world nature has dealt so liberally in regard to scenery and to climate. Your scenery possesses in a singular degree the charm of great grandeur with a complete absence of those stern and almost repelling features with which natural grandeur is so often combined. As for your climate, I do not know whether there are seasons of the year at which you incur retribution for the beautiful weather which we have experienced since our arrival here. I shall at any rate carry away with me an impression of your sunlit seas, your wooded promontories, your luxuriant vegetation teeming with life, of fish and fowl, and navigable with equal comfort, as has been well said, by a canoe or a man-of-war—an impression which shall remain with me as long as I live. It will not be the less agreeable because it is accompanied by the recollection of a people of whose loyalty to the crown, and whose courtesy and hospitality to their visitors I have had ample opportunities of judging. I thank you for your wish that my journey eastward may be a pleasant one. I can assure you that we shall not resume it without many lingering regrets for what we are leaving behind. Those regrets would be deeper still if I could bring myself to believe that I should never see again a country so delightful and a people so kindly and cordial as those of British Columbia.

ENGINEERING TRIUMPH

The Canadian Pacific the Wonder of the World.

The London Echo of the 23rd ult., states that the Canadian Pacific is now an accomplished fact. From one shore of the continent to the other the iron road stretches across intervening plains, over magnificent ruins, through savage passes, and up mountain ranges that were unknown before the pioneers of the line made their memorable survey. From Winnipeg to Calgary the work was easy, but the line of the railway from Calgary to Kamloops must be regarded as one of the engineering triumphs of the world. For the first time in the history of man the passage of the Selkirk Range has been made as easy as that over Salisbury Plain. The benefits of this great undertaking to Canada will be inestimable. British Columbia has now been joined to the sister States. New Westminster is within a week of Ottawa. The great timber supply of Puget Sound; the Columbia fisheries; the Alaska seal industries; the agricultural produce of Vancouver's Island have now a new and speedy outlet to the devouring East. The population there now fear no longer, in the same degree, their want of coast defences. Within seven days troops and artillery and ammunition may reach them from the military headquarters of the Dominion. Portions of Asia, too, may find this new space of civilization a shorter and cheaper route to European markets. This work is a great monument to human skill, courage and endurance. It is the greatest work yet accomplished by Canada and we join hands with our brothers across the Atlantic in celebrating its completion.

Fine Oysters.

A large bed of oysters has just been discovered by some fishermen on the Island, the bivalves being the largest and most delicious yet seen here. They are shipped direct to Joe Levy, of the Arcade, on Government street, where they will be supplied to lovers of this favorite dish. *

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Our Glorious Province and Notable Happenings.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—The arrival and departure of the Governor-General are now things of the past, as also the almost unannounced arrival of Sir Charles Tupper. A country said to be without a grievance has, however, furnished a few incidents of more than passing notice. The preparations to receive His Excellency were not of a representative character, and the knowledge that the country was paying the expenses of the trip, in addition to his large salary, somewhat chilled the nature of his reception. Not a cheer worth nothing greeted the ears of the Hibernian Landlord, but many a muttered expression was recorded against his tyranny. With all his wealth and prestige neither orphanage nor asylum became recipients of his bounty. He came to take all and give nothing, same as his predecessors. And strange to say there are portions of the community would deny themselves the necessaries of life for the luxury of receiving a smile or basking at the feet of such titled sons of fortune—even at the risk of getting snubbed for their devotion. He did not try to time his time to their time, but landed at the outer wharf indifferent to the grand stand erected in his honor. Afterwards at the sacrifice of his comfort made a grand display of his person, to satisfy the menagerie tastes of a few of his subjects. Sir Charles Tupper, another victim to uppishness, was actually compelled to make a special trip in post haste to the mainland exhibition to exhibit himself and tell them of industrial delinquencies. At Nanaimo the show was neither for the display of cabbages nor live stock, but for the display of a Lord, as the place was kept closed for his special convenience, so that the vulgar crowd might not see that a Governor-General ate and drank like an ordinary mortal. To carry this rosy business to the extreme of folly every address prepared for period was got up as palatable as the Driard dinner. Not a single allusion was made to labor—the source from which his dinner and every evidence of prosperity sprang. The struggles for existence between the Chinese and those of our own race were untouched, like some 'epronus thing unworthy of notice. We, the few suppliants of your smiles, and good report, who chaperone you from pillar to post, are the people who regulate all ills, formulate all schemes of profit, and sometimes condescend to pander to the troubles of the common people. Such in fact must have been the noble Lord's conclusions of his visit to this province, had it not been for higher intelligence than they possess. The common people spoke the truth, and repelled the glossy statements that no grievances existed with scorn and derision. The toast of the evening, borne on their mottoes, and afterwards forwarded to him, must have convinced him of the superficiality of his surroundings and of an intelligence that was gathering force and power; of sounds that were rumbling in the air, and likely to burst at no distant day on the heads of those who refuse to take warning, but in the midst of plenty and present power refuse to consider the growing misfortunes of their fellow men. At the banquet the same want of courtesy displayed itself in the order of toasts. The representative of the United States may not be all we would wish him to be, but the Chief of a great people deserved better and more courteous consideration, even common people would have done far better. In worshipping the glories of the old let us not forget the grandeur of the new. Remember there is no comparison between this Dominion of ours in its civil, political and religious liberties, and any other country in the world, outside colonial institutions. Corruption and greed have almost absorbed all the beauties of the declaration of independence and the system of landlordism at home, with other evils being gradually reformed, are the cause of colonization by the most intrepid and adventurous of the Anglo-Saxon race. By our superior systems of advancement we can be loyal to every good principle, and, as pioneers, aid in the disinthallment of our race; we can by increased intelligence and consolidation of mutual interests, conform to the spirit of progressive empirism, without endangering unity, or having our minds warped, by traditional usages foreign to the spirit of the age. As a Canadian, I am first loyal to Canada, second to the Empire of which we form a glorious part, reserving the right by inheritance from freeman to go on improving its destiny, and the well being of its people. RANTOR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES:

SIR,—Who is directing the corporation streets and roads repairs? One of the Jumbos (there must be two, they are twins likewise) is noisily cracking and spitting out stones on Humboldt street, and the other is less noisily but steadily stamping them under foot and bringing to a smooth surface in Government street. So far, perhaps, so good. But who is the bright particular star that directs the laying of gravel or mud—under the delusion it is gravel—on this even bed? Laying mud at an extra cost, on a clean, smooth bed of metal, to scrape it off again at still extra cost. ENQUIRER.

GENERAL DESPATCHES.

ARCHBISHOP M'CLOSKEY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The long night watch of those members of the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, who guarded the body of Cardinal McCloskey in the great Cathedral last evening, at length came to an end. The first beams of morning had hardly gilded the steeples of the church when the procession of priests, with uncovered heads, entered the cathedral and knelt before the altar. Prayers for the opening of the new day, the day upon which the body of America's first Cardinal was to be committed to earth, were said; then the priests walked slowly down the centre aisle on either side of the catafalque and returned to the sacristy. Two hundred policemen kept the crowd that had assembled shortly after 8 o'clock in order. The doors of the cathedral opened at 8:45 and the throng were invited to enter. As the hour for beginning the services was reached, the crush without the cathedral became greater; the streets for several squares in every direction were blocked with carriages and masses of people. The police had all they could attend to preserve order. The scene within the Cathedral was grand and impressive. The dead body of the Cardinal had during the night been placed in a mahogany coffin, which had been prepared for its reception; heavy drapery of purple velvet, bordered with a vellum fringe, hung about the coffin; rods of gold extending along the entire length of the coffin, ornamented the sides. The body had been so placed that the head of the dead prelate was raised above the level of the coffin, and was easily seen from below. The pews and aisles were crowded with people. Five thousand were in the Cathedral before ten o'clock. While the throng was waiting for the opening solemn requiem to begin, the Papal Zouaves, in their gold lace and bright uniforms, marched down the centre aisle and took up positions about the catafalque. A moment later the doors of the sacristy were flung open and a long procession of white robed priests and Acolytes filed down the steps to seats, directly in front of the high altar. There was a moment of hushed expectancy and then the stillness was broken by the priests as they chanted the office of the dead. Now two Acolytes, bearing lighted candles in their hands, followed by another procession of priests, came slowly out from the sacristy and bowed before the high altar; then came the bishops in their sombre hued garments, finally the monsignors and archbishops. When all was ready the choir chanted the requiem mass. The choir numbered over a hundred voices. Archbishop Corrigan was celebrant of the pontifical mass; the sermon was preached after mass. At the conclusion of the sermon preparations were made for the concluding rites by the bestowal of Episcopal absolutions. After the absolution had been uttered the coffin was removed from the catafalque by the attendants and carried to its last resting place in the crypt under the high altar, where it was placed beside the body of Archbishop Hughes. The congregation and clergy then quietly dispersed.

THE FUNERAL SERMON

was preached by His Grace Archbishop Gibbons from the 45th chapter of Ecclesiasticus: The praises of Moses, of Aaron and of Phinees. The discourse was an able impressive one and listened to by the immense multitude inside the vast edifice with marked attention.

Special to THE TIMES.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The sermon at the funeral of Cardinal McCloskey this morning was preached by Archbishop Gibbons, of Baltimore. The text was: "Ecclesiastics." These words spoken originally of Aaron, said the speaker, may be fittingly applied to the great high priest whose mortal remains now lie before you. He also was chosen out of all men living to fill the position in this nation, that he might teach Jacob his testimony and give light to Israel in his law. The glorious ornaments of the Pontiff, to which the sacred text refers, had a twofold signification. They symbolized in the eyes of the people his spiritual dignity and authority. To the Pontiff himself they represented the interior ornaments of virtue with which he should be adorned, and without which the most precious ornaments lose their lustre. The scarlet robes of the Cardinal remind you of the exalted dignity to which he was raised; they reminded himself of garments of innocence and how by his divine master he had been crimsoned with his precious blood, and that he should be ready, if necessary, to lay down his life for the faith. The Cardinal's death had brought sorrow to the universal church, as well as to the church of America, and it filled with grief the great heart of the Pontiff and the College of Cardinals, of which he was an illustrious member and a distinguished ornament. The Archbishop then briefly sketched the Cardinal's life, and touched upon a few salient features in his long and eventful career.

Daring Young Outlaws.

Special to THE TIMES.

PITTSBURG, PA., Oct. 15.—Last evening a number of female scholars, returning from school at Oakdale, near here, were met by three boys, two white and one colored, aged about 18 years, who attacked the girls with revolvers. The girls escaped, but one Anna R. McKemp, 14 years old, who was seized by the young outlaws, was terribly assaulted and left unconscious, where she was found some hours later by her friends. A posse was organized and after a long search the assailants ran down and arrested and taken to Pittsburg. The condition of Miss McKemp is serious and it is feared she will not recover. Indignation runs high and lynching is freely talked of. The boys arrested answer the description of three escaped prisoners from the Morganza reformatory.

From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—The Postmaster General has decided that the Department is under no obligation to deliver the mail thrown into its boxes by Wells, Fargo & Co. here after they have cancelled their stamp, and postmasters have been requested to refuse such matter.

It is said that the President has offered the presidency of the Civil Service Commission to Carl Schurz, and negotiations are going on to persuade Schurz to accept. Congress will be asked next winter to raise the pay of the Civil Service Commissioners.

THE OHIO ELECTIONS.

Nothing Yet Certain as to the Result.

Special to THE TIMES.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 15.—There can be no absolute certainty about the result of Tuesday's election in Hamilton county until an official count is made. The vote in two precincts of the 19th ward, whose counting was not finished last night, has now been counted and the result on the Governor vote, with one county precinct missing, which in 1884 gave 17 Republican majority, stands thus: Governor Hoadley, 33,667; Foraker, 33,362; Leonard, 1020. Hoadley's plurality therefore is 305. Returns are far from complete. On the Legislative ticket, the Times and Star estimate that the average vote for Republican members of the Legislature exceeds Foraker's vote by 1015. If that rate is maintained it would elect the Republican delegation, excepting Robert Hurlse. Nothing can be determined as to this contingency except by the official count. Since the list of counties claimed by the Republicans for Representatives was announced yesterday there have been two changes in Hancock, and another in Knox county. The vote in Knox county is close. There is also a doubt about the result in Williams county. Figures from the State Executive of Hamilton county indicate a plurality of from 18,000 to 20,000 for Foraker.

LIVERPOOL TO CHINA.

The St. Paul Globe, of the 7th inst., says: As the Canadian Pacific nears completion there is a good deal of discussion as to the Pacific terminus. An impression that Victoria is in danger of losing its importance as the chief city of British Columbia though the building up of a rival on the mainland is not without foundation. The Canadian Pacific road now ends at Port Moody, or Burrard Inlet, an arm of Georgia Straits, opposite Nanaimo harbor on Vancouver Island. The distance across Georgia Straits at this point is thirteen miles, and the distance from Nanaimo by land down to Victoria is in the neighborhood of sixty miles. A line of road connecting Victoria and Nanaimo is now under contract, and the management of the main line has declared its intention of transferring its trains across the straits by ferry-boats, the passage only requiring an hour. The distance saved by ships stopping at Victoria or Esquimalt instead of going to Port Moody is about sixty-five miles, and the harbor at Esquimalt is better than the harbor at Port Moody or at any other point on the mainland. Which will be the practical terminus of the line remains to be seen, but it is possible that the management will have a transfer system across the straits. It will, however, be decided shortly, as the line will be open for through traffic by the last of this week, and any delay in coming to a final decision will be a loss of revenue to the company, as terminal facilities will have to be provided, and to decide on Victoria after arrangements have been made at Port Moody will be a loss of what was expended at Port Moody. It is not probable that anything will be done in this matter this season. The port affording the best entrance to steamers of heavy tonnage will most likely be decided upon, as the Canadian Pacific is contemplating the inauguration of a steamship line from China to connect with its western terminal. The Canadian Pacific will be the largest corporation in the world, if all the schemes spoken of are carried out. It will have a line from Liverpool to China. The Allan Steamship Company of Montreal will do its business across the Atlantic, and it is said that some of the ships of this line will be taken to the Pacific coast to work the China and Japan trade for the Canadian Pacific, and the railway company will not be under the necessity of buying its own ships. It is stated that the Allan Steamship Company has been buying stock of the railway company and the two are closely connected. These steamships will commence ploughing the Pacific next season, so it is said, and form a strong competition with the Northern Pacific which intends doing the same thing, and which it really commenced with the vessel Isabel arrived at Tacoma with a consignment of tea from Yokohama, Japan. The Northern Pacific is now arranging for a fleet of sailing vessels and will be into the oriental and occidental trade first.

Lendin who returned to-day from attendance as interpreter at the Lytton assizes, informs us that the Kamaquin, John Evanson, who was convicted in Victoria some weeks ago on the charge of having killed a companion, Wolmelet was tried before Judge Walkem and convicted of manslaughter. He was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary at New Westminster, where he will serve his sentence in lieu of Mr. Hall's death.

A SIGNIFICANT MOVE.

The Chicago newspapers are just beginning to realize the full significance of the traffic agreement made between the Canadian Pacific and the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba railway, whereby it is asserted the latter becomes a feeder to the former. It now appears that the Manitoba road is to receive twelve per cent of the revenue from traffic going by the North Shore (Lake Superior) route, which by way of Winnipeg will be the shortest route to the seaboard for a very large section of the territory tributary to the St. Paul and Manitoba line. The local rates to Winnipeg will be as high as those to St. Paul, it will therefore be to their interest to send traffic by the former route, and thus secure their percentage of the receipts for the long haul to the seaboard. A large section of the eastern press is severely criticising the agreement, contending that its object is simply to shut out all competition from the Canadian Northwest. They refer to the fact that, although the leading members of the Canadian Pacific syndicate retired from the control of the Manitoba road a few years ago, three of the most prominent of them reappear on the Manitoba board this year. This goes to strengthen the surmise that the Manitoba road will be operated as a feeder to the Canadian Pacific. In Chicago it is asserted that it is obvious that the Canadian territory will not afford sufficient traffic for some years, even at reasonable rates, to pay operating expenses of a line which runs through hundreds of miles of a country that will not furnish any local traffic whatever. It is evident that much of such statements are made in ignorance of the actual facts, as a glance at the earnings of the company for the eight months ending 31st August last will testify. The earnings for that period were $5,085,166 against working expenses of $3,152,648, or a net profit of $1,932,518, being an increase of $1,686,816 over the net profits during the corresponding period of last year. This, be it remembered, was earned by an uncomplete road.

A writer in the Chicago Tribune sees business for Canada's national line in the Northwestern States of the Union. He says the people of Montana and Washington Territory are looking forward to the completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway and that the probability is that the whole of the Northern Pacific Railway will be tapped by its Canadian rival without being able to retaliate. The trade that in the summer time has found an outlet at Duluth will, in the winter, go by the Canadian Pacific Railway. The purpose of the latter is to condemn the agreement between the St. Paul, Minneapolis and Manitoba Railway and the Canadian Pacific Railway, which, he alleges, converts the former into a feeder to the Canadian line. The Chicago writer points out that Canadians are not the people to cry out, as "it is not their toes that will be pinched. On the contrary, the Canadian Northwest farmer will be the gainer, as the rates given to secure traffic from the American side of the line will to a certain extent govern the rates from Manitoba." Thus we see a spokesman of rival interests admitting the "splendid equipment" of our road, the certainty of its doing a large American as well as Canadian business, and rebuking Canadian decryers of the road by showing that it is not Canada but the Chicago system of railways that is going to suffer. For a time it was asserted that the lessof traffic through the new route would be but a trifling one. If this is the case it is surprising that such a fuss should be made about the matter. Mr. Van Horne, the Vice-President and General Manager of the Canadian Pacific, by his long connection with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway, will be thoroughly at home in competing for the Northwest trade, and it is now stated that he is to be reinforced by Mr. George Olds as Traffic Manager, and who was also connected with the Milwaukee road. When Chicago thus mourns it is high time for Canada to rejoice.

JUDICIOUS APPOINTMENTS.

Eastern exchanges to hand contain announcements of appointments made to carry into effect the provisions of the Franchise Act, passed at the recent session of Parliament at Ottawa. In counties containing but one electoral district the County Judge receives the appointment of Revising Barrister to complete the voters' list. Where there are more than one electoral district the Junior Judge, if there be such, is selected. In others so far, the appointments have been considered by both the Conservatives and Liberals as almost unobjectionable. It is to be hoped that the government will continue, as it has begun, conferring these appointments on worthy men only, for if the voters' list is to be tampered with, a full and free expression of the people's opinions at the polls and ballot boxes cannot be procured. The Revising Barrister clause was considered one of the most objectionable features of the bill when passing through Parliament, as it was supposed by many to be one in which an opportunity would be afforded unscrupulous partizans to "cook" the voters' list in such a manner as to ensure the return of his political affinities.

The names of the gentlemen selected for this position in this province have not yet been made public. It is understood that recommendations have been made by our representatives. In this city, where there are so many eligible parties for the office, the task of making a proper selection need not be a difficult matter. We have heard of several names as possible aspirants. Many of these are possessed of every qualification necessary to fill the responsible position, and undoubtedly would discharge the duties of the office impartially, with credit to themselves and the city. The selection of Edwin Johnson, Esq., our efficient Stipendiary Magistrate, for the position of Revising Barrister for Victoria City, would be a popular appointment and acceptable to all our people.

A WONDERFUL MATCHMAKER.

Denmark is a little country, made much less by the loss of Schleswig, Holstein and Laurenberg. Nevertheless it has made more influence in modern Europe than its mere size would warrant. The power of a country is helped by its being insular or peninsular, and with the vigorous red Gothic blood Denmark has been in the past a nation of soldiers and sailors—"little, but very fierce." The dispatches this week contained particulars of the fight which has been going on between the King and the Diet over the former's endeavoring to collect taxes, the levy of which has been refused by the legislative body. This is the question that lies at the very basis of constitutional government—that the representatives of the people, who pay the taxes, must hold the purse strings. With us, the House of Commons is so empowered. If Paris is France, Copenhagen is much more truly Denmark, and Copenhagen is with the King. The most important legal principle, and so in petty law suit may contain the most this kingdom is being fought a battle of rights which would lead up to a republic in a greater. King Christian has been a wonderful matchmaker, and if his relatives—among whom are the King of Greece, Duchess of Cumberland, Crown Princess of Sweden, Princess of Wales and Empress of Russia—do but stand by him, his subjects will have to yield.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The Imperial government has agreed to supply the brass metal from old guns for the statute of Joseph Brant, which is to be erected at Brantford, Ont., and now being executed by Mr. Percy Wood. Already thirteen 6-pound bronze cannon for this purpose have been presented. The honor conferred by the act will be perceived when it is recollected that the only other instance in recent years of the free gift of the guns for such a purpose was for the statute of the Prince Consort in the Albert memorial. The process of casting is being carried forward by Messrs. Masefield and the mould will probably be ready for the reception of the metal for the figure of Brant in about five weeks time.

It seems that Sir Charles Dilke and Mrs. Mark Patterson, whom he recently married, were engaged years ago when each was single. The engagement was broken off by a foolish lovers' quarrel. Her late husband, being aware of it, desired that after his death his widow should marry Sir Charles, the Rev. Mark Patterson enjoining his brother to see the lady through her widowhood and into her second wedlock. Mrs. Patterson was left a fortune of £50,000. Mr. Frank Patterson was present as a final discharge of the trust confided to him by his brother, and he provided the wedding feast where he proposed the health of the bride. It is believed that not much more will be heard now of the Crawford case.

The fact that Mrs. and Miss Folsom, of Buffalo, are guests at the White House, has revived the gossip connecting the young lady's name with that of the President in a matrimonial way. It may be there is something in the rumor, and that the visit is made with a view of giving the President an opportunity of studying the ways of his proposed mother-in-law, but no reliance can be placed in the gossips. They are so anxious for an excuse for talk of this kind that even Belva Lockwood or Dr Mary Walker could not call at the White House with impunity.

Mr. Thomas Hodgins, Q. C., Toronto, is preparing and will shortly issue an edition of the Franchise Act with notes similar to the "Manual on Voters' Lists," published by him a few years ago.

A Safeguard.

The fatal rapidity with which slight Colds and Coughs frequently develop into the gravest maladies of the throat and lungs, is a consideration which should impel every prudent person to keep at hand, as a household remedy, a bottle of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

Nothing else gives such immediate relief and works so sure a cure in all affections of this class. That eminent physician, Prof. F. Sweetzer, of the Maine Medical School, Brunswick, Me., says:—

"Medical science has produced no other anodyne expectorant as good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is invaluable for diseases of the throat and lungs."

The same opinion is expressed by the well-known Dr. L. J. Addison, of Chicago, Ill., who says:—

"I have never found, in thirty-five years of assiduous study and practice of medicine, any preparation of so great value as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, for treatment of diseases of the throat and lungs. It not only breaks up colds and cures every cough, but is more effective than anything else in relieving even the most serious bronchial and pulmonary affections."

AYER'S

Cherry Pectoral

Is not a new claimant for popular confidence, but a medicine which is to-day saving the lives of the third generation who have come into being since it was first offered to the public.

There is not a household in which this invaluable remedy has once been introduced where its use has ever been abandoned, and there is not a person who has ever given it a proper trial for any throat or lung disease susceptible of cure, who has not been made well by it.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has, in numberless instances, cured obstinate cases of chronic Bronchitis, Laryngitis, and even acute Pneumonia, and has saved many patients in the earlier stages of Pulmonary Consumption. It is a medicine that only requires to be taken in small doses, is pleasant to the taste, and is needed in every house where there are children, as there is nothing so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL for treatment of Croup and Whooping Cough.

These are all plain facts, which can be verified by anybody, and should be remembered by everybody.

IN LUCK AT LAST

BY WALTER BESANT.

"I remember tying up the letter with the parcel, where can it be gone to?"

"After eighteen years," he said, "after eighteen years. The ink will be faded and the papers yellow. But we shall see the certificates of the marriage and of your baptism, Iris; there will also be letters to different people, and a true account of the rupture with his father, and the cause, of which his letter spoke. And, of course, we shall find out what was his real name and what is the kind of inheritance which has been waiting for you so long, my dear. Now then."

The covering in case of the packet was a kind of stiff cardboard or millboard, within brown paper. Mr. Emblem laid it open. It was full of folded papers. He took up the first and opened it. The paper was blank. The next, it was blank; the third, it was blank; the fourth, and fifth, and sixth, and so on throughout. The case, which had been waiting so long, waiting for eighteen years, to be opened on Iris's twenty-first birthday was full of blank papers. They were all half sheets of notepaper.

Mr. Emblem looked surprised at the first two or three papers; then he turned pale; then he rushed at the rest. When he had opened all, he stared about him with bewilderment.

"Where is the letter?" he asked again. Then he began with trembling hands to tear out the contents of the safe and spread them upon the table. The letter was nowhere.

"I am certain," he said, for the tenth time, "I am quite certain that I tied up the letter with red tape, outside the packet. And no one has been at the safe except me."

"Tell us," said Arnold, "the contents of the letter as well as you remember them. Your son-in-law was known to you under the name of Aglen, which was not his real name. Did he tell you his real name?"

"No."

"What did he tell you? Do you remember the letter?"

"I remember every word of the letter."

"If you dictate it, I will write it down. That may be a help."

Mr. Emblem began quickly, and as if he was afraid of forgetting:

"When you read these lines, I shall be in the Silent Land, whither Alice, my wife, has gone before me."

Then Mr. Emblem began to stammer.

"In one small thing we deceived you, Alice and I. My name is not Aglen'—is not Aglen——"

And here a strange thing happened. His memory failed him at this point.

"Take time," said Arnold; "there is no hurry."

Mr. Emblem shook his head.

"I shall remember the rest to-morrow, perhaps," he said.

"Is there anything else you have to help us?" asked Arnold; "never mind the letter, Mr. Emblem. No doubt that will come back presently. You see we want to find out, first, who Iris's father really was, and what is her real name. There was his coat of arms. That will connect her with some family, though it may be a family with many branches."

"Yes—oh yes! his coat of arms. I have seen his signet ring a dozen times. Yes, his coat; yes, first and fourth, two roses and a lion's head erect; second and third—I forget."

"Humph! Was there any one who knew him before he was married?"

"Yes, yes," Mr. Emblem sat up eagerly. "Yes, there is—there is; he is my oldest customer. But I forget his name. I have forgotten everything. Perhaps I shall get back my memory to-morrow. But I am old. Perhaps it will never get back."

He leaned his head upon his hands, and stared about him with bewildered eyes.

"I do not know, young man," he said presently, addressing Arnold, "who you are. If you come from Mr. Chalker, let me tell you it is a day too soon. To-morrow we will speak of business." Then he sprang to his feet suddenly, and a look of terror, which pierced him like a dagger. "To-morrow! It is the day when they will come to sell me up. Oh, Iris! what did that matter when you were safe! Now we are all paupers together—all paupers."

He fell back in his chair white and trembling; Iris soothed him, kissed his cheek and pressed his hand; but the terror and despair of bankruptcy were upon him. This is an awful spectre, which is ever ready to appear before the man who has embarked his all in one venture. A disastrous season, two or three unlucky ventures, a succession of bad debts, and the grisly spectre stands before them. He had no terror for the old man so long as he thought that Iris was safe. But now——

"Idle talk, Iris—idle talk, child," he said, when they tried to comfort him. "How can a girl make money by teaching? Idle talk, young man. How can money be made by painting? It's as bad a trade as writing. How can money be made anyhow but in an honest shop? And to-morrow I shall have no shop, and we shall all go into the street together!"

Presently, when lamentations had yielded to despair, they persuaded him to go to bed. It was past midnight. Iris went up stairs with Mary while Lois Roy and Arnold waited down below. And then Arnold made a great discovery. He began to examine the folded papers which were in the packet. I think he had some kind of a vague idea that they might contain secret and invisible writing. They were all sheets of notepaper, of the same size, folded in the same way—assembly, doubled as if for a square envelope. On holding one to the light, he read the water mark:

HIEROGLYPHICA.
A Vegetable Vellum.
M. S. & Co.

They all had the same water-mark. He showed the thing to the Hindoo, who did not understand what it meant.

Then Iris came down again. Her grandfather was sleeping. Like a child, he fell asleep the moment his head fell upon the pillow.

"Iris," he said, "this is no delusion of your grandfather's. The parcel has been robbed."

"How do you know, Arnold?"

"The stupid fellow who stole and opened the packet no doubt thought he was wonderfully clever to fill it up again with paper. But he forgot that the packet has been lying for eighteen years in the safe, and that this notepaper was made the day before yesterday."

"How do you know that?"

FARM AND GARDEN

A Four Thousand Dollar House.

This week we give the home of the farmer who has followed his occupation scientifically, till he has become well off. He has studied books and papers on agriculture. He has acted on their advice, and above all followed the bidding of his own common sense and "gumption," till now he is comfortable for life. But he does not hoard his money, or put it out at usurer's interest. He spends it on his farm and family, getting returns a hundred fold. For one thing, he has built the home you see here. The modern house is usually planned in the shape of a partial or entire cross. It is built of wood or brick, as one chooses, or it may be plastered in panels upon the outside, in the new fashion. Or it may be covered with trimmed shingling all over the outside of the walls, which is ornamental, but rather expensive. The porch is in front, with bay window at the side. Where possible, the bay window should look towards the south and east. Then it can be converted into a window garden that will make the interior look like a slice of paradise. A simple system of water piping, heated by a kerosene lamp, will keep this window garden warm in winter.

SCIENTIFIC FARMER'S HOUSE.

In summer, have the splendid Virginia creeper climbing the columns of the porch and shading the windows. Wire settings are now made to put up around the window casings and walls for vines, so that they may not grow immediately upon the house itself. A house like this should be set in the midst of generous grounds to show off well. Trees—beautiful maples, catalpas, oaks, etc.—should be set in the grounds, not immediately against the building, but near enough to make a pleasant shade about it. The farmer has plenty of ground, and the trees grow in his own woods. Let him think on his mercies.

GROUND FLOOR.

You see here the large square hall, with staircase across it, instead of directly facing the door. The square hall and cross staircase are prominent features of the present style of house building. As in the design given previously, this hall has an open fireplace, and is furnished in a free and easy way, like a room. Works of art and artistic furniture are well disposed here.

There are pleasant fireplaces in all the rooms of the first floor. The kitchen is separated from the dining-room by a pantry, so that food smells will not be annoying. There is also plenty of closet room. The kitchen is large, light and airy, as it should be. A kitchen can be made as pretty and artistic as any room of a house. The one in our illustration is provided with sink, range, and all conveniences.

SECOND FLOOR.

The back stairs lead up through the kitchen. The mansion is supplied with a bath-room. The hall is lighted above and below by a large double window on the landing. Five airy bed-rooms and a bath-room make up the space on the second floor.

Your Knowing Farmer.

People who know everything already ought to die at once. There is no longer any occasion for them to stay in this world, because the earth is the place to learn. That is what we are put here for.

It makes one melancholy to consider how many fool farmers there are. Of course they are not among the readers of this column. But there are armies of them. A gentleman whose head was full of practical agricultural knowledge offered to lecture free to farmers in different parts of the country. He would go from place to place, pay his own expenses, and all the rustics had to do was to come and hear him. He had a pleasant, entertaining way of talking, too. But he could make no headway at all. The stupid hard-headed old fellows simply sneered in their blank, besotted ignorance, and would have none of him. In one place a committeeman wrote:

"It is of no use coming here. Farmers do not believe in science. If you can sing a comic song I can promise you a good audience, but as for a lecture on anything useful, much as I may desire it myself, I do not believe you would have half a dozen persons." Another said: "We have several young farmers in the place, but I do not believe they would attend a lecture on agriculture. The young people are too fond of amusements to attend lectures or classes which require any mental effort."

One person to whom the proposition of a scientific lecture was broached, went so far as to reply: "If I don't know how to farm I don't want a man to learn me. What I do know about farming, I do know, and what I don't know, I don't want to know."

There you have it. What I don't know I don't want to know.

—The telephone line from New Westminster is expected to reach Granville this week.

—Eight convicts have been brought down from Kamloops to the penitentiary. Six were Chinamen, one an Indian and one a white man.

—A salmon trout weighing 48 lbs. has been taken in the Fraser. Capt. Pittendrigh will have it skinned, stuffed and sent to London exhibition.

—Before going to the theatre, go to Messrs. Atwell, King & Co. and get an opera glass on hire. They can supply everyone with them, and good ones.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ireland lost their youngest child, aged six months, last night. The funeral will take place on Saturday.

—The funeral of the late Charles Desk took place this morning from his late residence and St. Andrew's Cathedral, and was largely attended.

—The Yosemite brought the following produce as well as other freight from the mainland to-day: 800 bales hay, 569 sacks oats, 325 sacks potatoes, and 84 head of cattle.

—The house of Mr. A. Haslam, Nanaimo, was burglarized on Friday night, a watch and chain and $1.50 being taken from the room in which that gentleman was sleeping.

—The Yosemite brought down from the mainland to-day another large batch of discharged coolies. The city is now swarming with this low class of Chinese. Look out for your chickens.

—Five horses, four owned by Indians and one by Mr. Mingay, were killed on the railway track near the saw mill. They were caught by the engine at the bridge, which they endeavored to cross.

—A correspondent, "Lightning," writes THE TIMES a lengthy letter on the electric question and the positions occupied by Messrs. McMicking and Hendry as managers thereof. The matter is in the hands of the Council, and doubtless will receive due attention from that body.

—The Teaser arrived from the mainland about 1:30 this afternoon, bringing a full list of passengers, nearly all of whom were discharged railroad employees. Her freight list was also a very large one and comprised farm produce from Cariliwhack.

—Sir Charles Tupper and party reached Winnipeg last Friday and expressed themselves as greatly pleased with their trip. They give a glowing account of the progress being made in this city, the province generally, and the future outlook for British Columbia's vast resources.

—Two deserters from H. M. S. Triumph were brought down from Nanaimo to-day by Officer Lindsay. They found out, after a few day's freedom, that there were worse places than on board a man-of-war and surrendered to the authorities at Nanaimo, asking to be sent back to their ship.

—A gentleman arrived in the city today, direct from the work of construction says that the gap between the two ends of the track has been reduced to twenty-six miles. Some delay will be caused by the construction of the temporary bridge over the Columbia, and it is not probable that the Governor-General will drive the last spike, although he may formally celebrate the completion of the great work by a ceremony of some kind.

Cyrs and Pickering, the proprietor and manager, are exerting themselves successfully in catering to the tastes of their audiences and it will be pleasing to them to find that their exertions are fully appreciated. The performance will be repeated to-night.

POLICE COURT.

[Before E. Johnson, S. M.]

THE QUARANTINE LAWS.

Capt T. F. Wilson, of the Olympian, charged with an infraction of the quarantine regulations. Mr. Gappaway, (Drake, Helmcken & Jackson) for the Dominion government, and Mr. Pooley (Davie & Pooley) for the defence.

Dr. Jackson, health officer, sworn:—I examined a Mrs. Miller on the 8th inst., in a house on View street, who was reported to have the smallpox. I found her suffering from that disease; the patient informed me that she had that day arrived in Victoria on the steamer Olympian. I immediately took steps to isolate the case and report the matter to the Mayor. The disease appeared to be in its second stage—probably in the tenth or twelfth day. It was a mild case, the woman having been previously vaccinated. She had eruptions on her face, and must necessarily have been sick on the voyage. It is the duty of the master of the steamers to give certificates of the state of the health of her passengers, and it would be a transgression of his duty to give such a certificate (like the one produced) if there was sickness on board.

Cross-examined: The eruption on the woman's face was very marked; any person who had once seen small-pox would recognize it. It is not necessarily my duty to board every ship, unless it is reported to me to have sickness on board. It is the captain's duty to report it, and if he decides that it is not contagious, he takes the responsibility upon himself.

Dr. Milne, sworn: Examined Mrs. Miller on the 8th inst., on the Esquimalt road. She was suffering from a mild form of small-pox, and apparently had been sick about four days. Her husband said that she had taken sick near Jamestown, Dakota, on the way hither; they had certificates from a Montreal doctor that they were free from disease, and had also been fumigated at Detroit.

Cross-examined: Was summoned by Mr. Miller, who told me that his wife was suffering from hives. When I first saw the patient it would have required a professional man to recognize the disease.

F. Morrison, sworn: Saw the passengers landed on the 8th inst., on the H. B. dock; Captain Wilson was in charge of the steamer, which landed as usual without any inspection. I spoke to Mr. Miller and saw Mrs. Miller, but could not say that she was sick, as I did not notice her.

Cross-examined:—Did not look closely enough at Mrs. Miller's face to see any eruption; had I known there was anything wrong I would have reported it.

Mr. Pooley asked that the case be dismissed, as the prosecution had failed to prove that Mrs. Miller was a passenger on board the Olympian. No evidence had been given to show that the woman had arrived by that steamer, and the prosecution had signally failed to prove the point.

The court said that the evidence of Dr. Jackson contained statements made by Mrs. Miller, which might be held to prove the fact, although had it been objected to at the time it would have been ruled out.

Capt. Wilson, sworn:—Am master of the Olympian; I don't personally remember Mrs. Miller coming over on the 8th inst.; had no knowledge that any person was sick on that day. I get my directions from the Health Officer as to reporting parties sick; he never instructed me to report trifling ailments; I am to report all persons afflicted with contagious diseases. It is invariably the case that some of the passengers are sea-sick; this morning, although we had only three ladies, two were sick. Have always followed out the instructions given by Dr. Jackson.

Cross-examined:—Did not know that Mrs. Miller was sea-sick. I did state on the 9th of October that "I was not aware that Mrs. Miller was sick, but that the steward had told me that she was a little sea-sick." I was informed of this next trip. I was furnished with the quarantine regulations on the 8th inst., after arriving in the city. Never had sickness on board the boat before. Ran here during the smallpox excitement, but had no trouble then. On the 8th inst. there was a heavy swell, and a number of the passengers were unwell.

George William Poor, sworn—Am chief steward on the Olympian. Saw Mrs. Miller on the evening of the 7th of October at Tacoma, in the saloon, with her husband; I shook hands with both of them; asked them about their trip east, and there was nothing whatever about the lady's appearance that induced me to believe that she was ill. They both came to their meals at the table that evening, but the lady did not come to breakfast next morning; her breakfast was sent to her stateroom. Her husband told me she was a little sea sick.

His Honor here stated that he was quite convinced that Captain Wilson was not aware that there was any case of sickness on board. The point was, did ignorance of that fact relieve him of the responsibility.

Mr. Pooley argued that it did. The evidence went to show that it was an undeveloped case of smallpox, but no unprofessional man would have suspected that there was anything wrong. The voyage was only of a few hours and it would be preposterous to hold the master liable.

The court said there were two points to consider; first, had the prosecution proved that Mrs. Miller arrived by the Olympian, and second, was the captain liable since he knew nothing about the illness of the passenger in question. He asked that the counsel supply him with authorities on these two points, and adjourned the case until Monday for judgment.

Grace Hawthorne.

On next Monday night, 19th instant, this great emotional actress will formally inaugurate the new Victoria Theatre. It is well that a new theatre, like this most beautiful one, should be dedicated by a class of performances of a nature calculated to please the best class of theatre goers in our community. Such is the character of the plays to be presented by Miss Hawthorne next week. Society dramas are the speciality. Her repertoire includes The New Camille, which is a new adaption of Dumas' great masterpiece; "Queena," a comedy-drama of great strength; "Fron-Fron"; "East Lynne"; "Miss Multon" and "Adrienne Le Couvreur." Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday afternoons at 2:30 o'clock. On Saturday night a special bill will be prepared for the farewell performance of Miss Hawthorne. The company who support her are spoken of in the highest terms, and she has received the highest endorsements from the press throughout the entire United States. We bespeak a successful engagement for Miss Hawthorne.

CITY COUNCIL.

The Usual Budget of Weekly Business Disposed of.

The regular meeting of the City Council was held last evening. Present: Mayor Bethet and Councillors McKillican, Smith, Earle, Teague, Braden, Warner, Ward.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From R. E. McMicking, asking that his duties and responsibilities as electrician, &c., be clearly defined in accordance with a verbal agreement entered into with Councillor Grant.

Councillor McKillican said that there was a disagreement between Mr. Hendry and Mr. McMicking as to the running of the machinery, and it was necessary that an arrangement should be come to.

The Mayor said that the disagreement was in regard to the speed at which the machinery was run. Mr. Hendry wanted it run at 800 revolutions per minute, where Mr. McMicking thought that 650 was sufficient, or all that it would stand. At the test it was run at 850.

Councillor Braden said the same machinery in other places was run at 800 and it should be so here. If it was not possible for it to do so it was a fraud.

Councillor Earle thought the matter might be left over, as the time was near when more money would be expended in extending the light, and he, for one, would go in for a new electrician. Communication laid over.

From Thos. Mason, asking to be allowed to erect a stand for polishing shoes at the Grand Pacific. Request refused, and all boot blacks now occupying the streets to be removed.

From L. G. McQuade, secretary, reporting the election of C. J. Phillips and T. Deasy, as engineer and assistant engineer, of the fire department.

From L. G. McQuade, secretary, requesting for permission to purchase one thousand feet of hose. Referred to fire wardens, with power to act.

From W. F. Tolmie asking for the removal of rock and earth on Wharf street near his lot. Referred to the street committee to report.

From Yates and Jay, inclosing bill of costs in the case of McLean and others vs. the Corporation, and stating that plaintiffs' costs had been taxed at $53. Referred to the finance committee.

From Mary Rodgers, requesting that a drain through her lot in James Bay be closed, and another on the line of Simcoe street be opened. Referred to the street committee.

The clerk read bills for the month of September, aggregating $1,752.14, which were referred to the finance committee.

REPORTS.

From Dr. Jackson, Health Officer, reporting that he had visited a Chinaman living in a shanty off Fisguard street, and another in the gaol, both afflicted with leprosy, but not of a dangerous character; also calling attention to a number of nuisances and the crowded state of the city gaol. He also recommended a vigorous enforcement of the sanitary laws and the division of the city into sections to be inspected by officers appointed for that purpose.

Councillor Ward said one satisfactory thing about the report was that we had at length heard from Dr. Jackson. One of the duties of that official was to examine every steamer that came into the harbor, but that had not been done, as it was well known that a case of contagious disease had lately been imported into the city.

His Worship said the Sanitary Officer was now fulfilling the duties of his office.

Referred to the Sanitary Committee.

From Dr. Jackson, Health Officer, reporting a case of smallpox, Mrs. Miller, on View street, and stating that all the necessary precautions had been taken in the matter.

From Sergt. Fiewin, reporting a nuisance on Pandora street. The usual notices were ordered to be served.

CITY MORALITY.

Councillor McKillican then moved the motion of which he had given notice in reference to the closing of the saloons at nights, and places of business on Sunday; seconded by Councillor Teague and carried.

Councillor Ward moved, seconded by Councillor Smith, that the by-law be printed. It was agreed that copies be supplied to the Councillors, and the consideration of the by-law was deferred until next meeting.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Councillor Smith referred to the overcrowded state of the city gaol. A communication from the government on the matter had not been replied to. He moved that the Police Committee communicate with the government to ascertain their wishes on the question.

Councillor Smith said the extension of the water works on Fort and Simcoe streets would cost $550. He gave notice that he would move that that amount be set apart for the purpose.

The Mayor said that about fifty or sixty replies had been received to the circular on the proposed drainage scheme, and a time should be set apart to consider them.

Councillor Earle said they had done pretty well for the past week or two, and the new theater was still to be opened. He suggested next week.

Council adjourned.

Intent to Do and Doing Wrong

A contemporary does not agree with Mr. Wilson and the Police Magistrate that a drunken Indian should be punished as severely as a sober savage who has the whiskey in his pocket to make himself drunk. The latter, it is argued, is the greater criminal of the two, because he has the "means of doing incalculable injury," whereas one drunken Indian is not a "formidable evil." The argument is somewhat peculiar, and the only inference that can be drawn from it is that an evidence of intent to do a wrong should be more severely punished than the actual commission of the wrong. In other words, the villain who lies in wait, revolver in hand, to shoot his victim, should be hung, if arrested before the crime is committed, but a year's imprisonment will suffice if he has succeeded in his purpose to commit murder. This is not the law of civilized nations, which punish for the act committed with greater severity than for a design entertained or a deed yet to be performed. Were our contemporary adjudged by the same standard, for moral and legal delinquency, he would be the first to protest against it as tyrannical and unjust.

Kootenay Mines.

Mr. Cochrane, an English gentleman, who owns an extensive ranch south of Calgary, is now in the city. He has been prospecting all summer, with Mr. Brady, a mining engineer, in the Kootenay country, and has secured several valuable mineral locations.
